

In Garaha, seven people were killed when gunmen on more than 50 motorcycles stormed the village and attacked a nearby military base, said resident Musa Isa, who added he “narrowly escaped.”

They advanced from several directions and hit the military base, killing three soldiers. Four fleeing residents were shot, and a school was also burned. Many villagers have since fled to Mubi, the nearest big town, Isa said.

Aramco Targets 80% Gas Capacity Growth By 2030

Lagos Advances With Converting Electricity Law Into Bankable

Projects

Kogi State Receives Certificate For Ajaokuta Economic Free Trade Zone

Rep Agbese Lauds NNPC–Dangote Partnership

Adamawa State Governor Ahmadu Umaru Fintiri condemned the attacks as “cowardly acts of terrorism” and vowed not to “let terrorists undermine our efforts to restore peace and stability,” according to a statement from his spokesman.