

South West

May 2, 2026 by Tosin Tope, Akure

Man absconds after allegedly killing wife in Ondo community, dumps corpse in hospital morgue

A man has reportedly gone into hiding after allegedly killing his wife, Christianah Kutelu, in Ikare-Akoko, Akoko North-East Local Government Area of Ondo State.

Kutelu, said to be a staff member of a special needs school in the Ikare community, died on Wednesday under circumstances suspected to be linked to domestic violence.

Sources said the suspect allegedly conveyed the victim's body to a morgue shortly after the incident before fleeing to an unknown destination.

Family members were said to have reported the matter to the police, raising suspicions over the husband's possible involvement in her death.

READ ALSO: Ogun East: Between Gbenga Daniel and Dapo Abiodun

Confirming the incident, the spokesperson for the Ondo State Police Command, DSP Jimoh Abayomi, said investigation had commenced into the suspected murder case.

Related News

- 23-year-old allegedly hacks mother to death in Ondo community

- Fire claims lives of two siblings in Ondo community
- 'Oil spill ruins livelihoods in Ondo community'

"The Ondo State Police Command has commenced investigation into a suspected murder case reported at the Ikare Division involving the death of Mrs Christianah Kutelu, aged 51.

"The case was reported by a family member who alleged that the deceased's husband might have been involved in acts of domestic violence leading to her death.

"The husband is currently at large, and efforts are ongoing to locate and apprehend him. The corpse has been deposited at the hospital morgue for autopsy to determine the actual cause of death."

Abayomi assured residents that the Command would carry out a thorough investigation to ensure justice is served.

