

Security Neutralises Bandits, As NIPSS Confirms Another Attack On Vicinity

Musa Pam

July 3, 2026

1 minute read

The National Institute for Policy and Strategic Studies (NIPSS), Kuru has confirmed another attempted attack by unidentified armed assailants to breach the Institute's security perimeter fence.

The Institution in a press statement signed and issued by the Head Public Affairs Department Dr Osime Samuel said the attacks were successfully repelled by security personnel late night yesterday .

He added that the attackers engaged security operatives in a gun duel but were forced to retreat following the swift and coordinated response of the security forces.

"One of the assailants was neutralised during the encounter, while others were reported to have escaped with varying degrees of injuries. He maintained that the Institute is pleased to report that there was no breach of the security perimeter.

All participants, staff, residents and Institute facilities remain safe and secure. The statement noted that security agencies have intensified efforts to apprehend the fleeing suspects, while surveillance and other proactive security measures have been further strengthened within and around the Institute.