Among other things, Table 2, 3 and appendix 1 suggest that there has been appreciable incidence and prevalence of Fulani/Farmer conflict in Nasarawa State. More importantly, they point to the fact that the situation has been quite perennial and threatening. The destructive import of the conflict would be better appreciated against the backdrop of their manifest and observed effects. It is to this concern that we now turn.

10. Effects of the Conflicts

The conflict situation under review has resulted in dire humanitarian, social, economic, and socio-economic consequences. These effects of the conflicts are hereunder discussed based on empirical insights drawn from field study as well as systematic exploration of relevant secondary sources.

10.1 Humanitarian Effects: Herder/Farmer conflicts in Nasarawa State have led to loss of life, population displacements, human injury and livelihood crisis. According to a source credited to the National Orientation Agency (NOA Nasarawa State Pulse Report, 2013), the conflicts have led to the killing of not fewer than one hundred and thirty (130) persons between 2011 and 2013 (see Table 3). This is in addition to scores of people who have been rendered morbid, homeless, displaced and destitute by the conflicts.
