No fewer than 25 people were killed on Monday at Zango village in Wase Local Government Area of embattled Plateau State in north-central Nigeria as ethnic militia engaged in fresh hostilities. The killings are a continuation of hostilities between the Tarok and the Fulani tribes which have left several casualties on both sides.

It was learned that armed militia invaded Wase town on Monday afternoon but were repelled by the town's vigilante members who pursued and killed many of them.

Spokesman of the Military Special Task Force (STF) in the state, Capt. Salisu Mustapha, confirmed the incident.
