Another UNIPORT student killed

FRIDAY, 19 OCTOBER 2012 14:24 IGNATIUS CHUKWU & JESSE OKEDI

Another student of the University of Port Harcourt, this time, a female, has been shot dead. A member of the National Youth Service Corps (NYSC) who just passed out earlier in the day and one other yet to be identified were also killed in the hail of bullets at about 10pm October 18, 2012.

This came on the day Wole Soyinka gave a speech in the Garden City lamenting what he called a new war against education in Nigeria and a bad name for Aluu and other host communities of the famous Uniport, though another literary giant, Elechi Amadi, had defended Aluu over the opprobrium arising from the recent brutal killing of four male Uniport students by a mob.

The police in Port Harcourt confirmed the last night shooting and killing, saying the female victim was a Uniport student. Apprehension is rife in security circles over another mass killing around the Uniport involving more students, but the police was seen this morning picking the corpses.

The shooting took place in front of a beer parlour at Rumuchiaka village in Choba, near Port Harcourt. An eye witness told BusinessDay that the NYSC member and his friends seemed to be celebrating his successful passing out earlier in the day.

Soon after, at about 9.45pm, after some drinks, the trio walked out but one of them knocked down sliced plantains and woman seller accosted them, insisting they paid for the loss.

It was while the matter was being settled that a black Highlander Jeep pulled up and men with rifles jumped out and began shooting the trio. "They took their time and kept shooting until the three of them (victims) were confirmed dead before they pulled back their guns", a female source narrated.

Nothing happened to any other person. The woman whose plantain slices were tossed away is said to have remained dazed till the next day.

God!!! what is actually goin on in dis state,wat a story!!

#13 Jennie 2012-10-19 22:21

Those who carried out this barbaric act need to be brought to justice. You cannot take another person I matter what the circumstance. This case must be investigated and the killers brought to book. I keep th this is a dream it cannot be my brother, but I was wrong. My heart is too heavy, oh God please help us.

this is getting really serious, wat is happening, them wan finish the whole student one by one

#11 Collins 2012-10-19 20:31

GOD must not spare the killers

#10 jay7 2012-10-19 20:16

nigerian government should please legalise the uses of gun by individual as protection. that will reduce rate of crime in the country.

#9 Emma Awah 2012-10-19 20:07

The Nigerian police is as usual a thousand kilometer away. How long can we continue with this type of situations.

I cry for my country. The federal structure of police has failed us, lets try the state police system first.

#8 Davis Omon 2012-10-19 20:03

Let her tell us about the killings.She tactically delayed them for the killiers

#7 Ahmad rufai suleman 2012-10-19 19:59

Insecurity in my country is the order of the day. We need constant prayers for only GOD can change th deteriorated security stance in our communities & the nation at large. may GOD save nigeria amin
