Two members of a robbery gang, which allegedly blocked a section of the Lagos-Ibadan Expressway, were yesterday killed by men of the Ogun State Police Command.

The bandits were said to have opened fire on security agents before they eventually met their Waterloo. Other members of the gang, however, escaped from the scene following a fierce gun duel, according to sources.

The Nigerian Compass learnt that policemen from Isara Divisional Police Station, Remo North Local Government, who were acting on tip-off, swung into action and engaged the hoodlums.

The state Police Public Relations Officer (PPRO), Mr. Muiyiwa Adejobi, who confirmed the incident, said the suspects were planning to carry out their robbery attack on the Lagos-Ibadan expressway.

"Men of the Isara Division got information that robbers blocked some section of Lagos-Ibadan expressway and immediately swung into action.

"On approaching, the robbers opened fire and policemen responded and gunned down two of them; others escaped with bullets wounds," Adejobi said.
