SOME unidentified gunmen yesterday killed a Maiduguri based cleric Ustaz Ibrahim Ahmed Abdullahi Gomari at his residence on the outskirts of the state capital.

Witnesses said the gunmen met the cleric seated in front of his house at Gomari area, situated on Maiduguri-Damaturu road, around 7.08pm.

"They came in an unmarked Sport Utility Vehicle (SUV) and opened fire on the cleric," one of the witnesses said.

"I heard five simultaneous gunshots and shortly thereafter, I heard the sound of the jeep which brought the gunmen zooming away," the source added.

Borno State Police spokesman Lawan Abdullahi could not be reached for comments. An officer in the police public relations office who picked the phone of the PPRO said Abdullahi was at the office of the police commissioner for briefing.

Daily Trust recalled that another cleric, Sheikh Bashir Mustapha was killed in similar circumstances on the 9th October, 2010 at his residence in Gwange area of Maiduguri.

Both Abdullahi and Mustapha are said to be friends.

Unless we Nigerians come out in full to vote for Buhari the security situation will just deteriorate. It is only a callous, wicked and irresponsible government that will not declare a state of emergency in Borno and Plateau states where Bokom Haram fanatic and Birom ethnoreligious cleansing terrorists hold sway.

May God punish boko haram and what they are doing is completely unislamic and the community should stand and fight against them. The security should watch that SUV because they used it to attack Modu Fannami Gubio.
