Three gunmen suspected to be members of the Boko Haram sect yesterday rode on a motorcycle and shot the duty officer of the Borno State Government House, Assistant Superintendent of police (ASP) Umaru Shehu at his Abujan Talakawa residence in Maiduguri metropolis. A teenager was killed in the attack and another boy sustained serious injuries as a result of gunshots.

Though Umaru did not die, witnesses said one of the bullets hit him on the chest. "They (gunmen) hanged around the house of the officer around 7.30am. They fired at him when he was coming out with his car on his way to work," a source said.

"His two hands were badly damaged by bullet wounds when he used them and depleted the intensity of the bullet which penetrated his chest.

The two children were caught in the attack after they opened the gate of the house," the source said.

The assistant police commissioner in the state, Usman Baba, confirmed the attack and said the victims were receiving treatment at the University of Maiduguri Teaching Hospital (UMTH).

Three prison warders were also killed by unidentified gunmen in Maiduguri in the last few days. The assistant commissioner of police said no arrest had been made but that security operatives in the state were intensifying surveillance.
