Nigeria: Cult Clash Claims Two Lives in Imo

Johnkennedy Uzoma

13 December 2011

Owerri — Two persons were said to have been killed in a clash between two rival cults at Awara community in Ohaji/Egbema Local Government Area of Imo State at the weekend.

A member of the community, who pleaded anonymity, told Daily Trust yesterday that the clash ensued when members of the Demob fraternity attacked the Degbam fraternity, killing two of its members.

It was gathered that in August this year, members of the Demob fraternity attacked the Degbam group and killed one of its leaders.

The incident, according to witnesses, has compelled members of the community to flee to neighbouring villages.

The Police Public Relations Officer, Mr. Samuel Odee confirmed the incident, saying that two members of the cult were killed by the rival group.

Odee, who said that officers of the command had been deployed to the area, added that no arrest had been made yet.

He said the police were already searching for the cultists.
