Hundreds of aggrieved youth yesterday blocked the highway in Sabon Garin Narabi, a border village along Jos - Bauchi road in protest against an auto crash which killed one person and injured another. The youth said they were also protesting against over-speeding and reckless driving which they said had been claiming lives along the road for a long time.

Aminu, a witness, told Daily Trust: "Some angry youths who came back from the burial of the person that lost his life in the accident stormed the highway around 9.30 am and blocked the road, burning tires in protest. Some of them smashed some vehicles." Danladi Sani whose car windscreen and mirror were smashed, said: "I was coming back from Toro town with three passengers in my car. When we reached Narabi, we saw some youths with sticks on the main road burning tires. Some smashed my car windscreen and broke two of my mirrors and the other driver in my front also lost two of his mirrors". Police Public Relations Officer (PPRO) in Plateau State, Felishia Anslam said she had not been briefed by the DPO of the area about the incident.
