No fewer than four persons reportedly lost their lives in a rival cult clash in Kono and Boue communities of Khana Local Government Area of Rivers State.

Details of the incident were scanty as at press time. But our correspondent gathered that the two communities came under heavy gunfire two days ago between the rival groups, a development that made residents to flee the communities.

Our correspondent also learnt that the number of deaths recorded rose because the fight that started early last week continued yesterday.

The spokesperson of the State Police command could not be reached for comment as her handset was switched off.

Senator Magnus Abe, who is representing Rivers South East in the Senate, last Tuesday appealed to the youths in the two communities to eschew violence and embrace peace.
