Police probe murder of 30-year old man in Ebonyi

The Ebonyi Police Command has begun investigation into the death of a 30-year old man, Uduma Nwangele of Egwudihagu community of Ohaukwu Local Government Area of the state.

The News Agency of Nigeria (NAN) reports that Nwangele was found dead, dumped at the roadside in the area with cuts all over his body.

Confirming the situation to NAN on Sunday, the command's Public Relations Officer, Mr George Okafor, said that the deceased's younger brother, Chukwuma, reported the matter to the police.

"Chukwuma reported the matter on April 30."

He said Chukwuma also reported to police that the deceased mentioned three people as his assailants before he died.

"Our officers have visited the scene of the crime, photographed the corpse and deposited it in the mortuary while awaiting the autopsy reports.

"Investigation into the matter is ongoing; no arrest has been made because his assailants ran away after committing the crime.

"We will ensure that the culprits are arrested and determine whether they were actually involved in the murder.

"We would not rely entirely on the information given by the deceased's brother but ensure that the real suspects are apprehended," the police officer said. (NAN)

Fashola restates commitment to sustainable infrastructure

The Minister of Power, Works and Housing, Mr. Babatunde Fashola, has restated the federal Government's determination to develop stable power supply, good road network and affordable housing for Nigerians.

This is contained in a statement from the Minister's Special Adviser (Communications), Mr Hakeem Bello yesterday in Abuja.

It said Fashola gave the assurance when he spoke at the African Alliance 2016 Investors Day in Lagos. He said the ministry was determined to achieve results by doing things differently to develop sustainable infrastructure to convert current challenges to opportunities for economic growth. He was quoted to have decried the problems inherent in the entire power chain, "from distribution to transmission, generation and gas supply, including a cross-cutting liquidity problem".

The statement said the existing gap of meter supply in the distribution segment of the power chain had created enormous opportunities for local production for estimated three million consumers. (NAN)
