A 12-year-old boy was said to have drowned, last Friday afternoon, at Rafin-Daji village, Kwali Area Council.

A resident of the community, identified as Musa, said that the incident happened when the deceased and one of his brothers took their cows to drink water at the river.

He said that the boy's elder brother was herding the cows, while the deceased removed his clothes and jumped inside the river. It was when the deceased could not come out of the river that his elder brother ran to their settlement and reported the incident. "There was heavy downpour in the early morning of that day and the river's volume increased," he said.

He said that the corpse of the deceased was later found by some fishermen and handed over to the family for burial.
