Witnesses said they were discovered dead in their room and may have been strangled to death by their attackers.

The Police Public Relations Officer (PPRO) DSP Catherine Anene, who confirmed the incident to newsmen in Makurdi, said the cause of their death was yet unknown.

Anene said when police operatives found the bodies early yesterday, there were no injuries on any part of them to suggest that they might have been killed with an object or strangled.

She added that the baby who survived among the family members could not talk as she is still too young to describe what happened. The PPRO however said further investigations would reveal the actual cause of the incident.
