

Earlier in February, at least eight people were reportedly killed in Okporowo village in Ogbakiri clan, Emohua Local Government Area of Rivers State following a cult clash. The victims were said to be members of a particular cult group in the area, who were killed by their colleagues.

It was gathered that the clash was between the old and new generation members of the cult group. The new generation members of the cult had chased their older members away from the area in a bid to be in charge of the group.
