A young man, identified as Fidelis Nnadi, was said to have been gunned down by the hoodlums along Okwelle-Umuezealaibe road, Abba, in Nwangele Local Government Area of Imo.

Our correspondent gathered that the victim, whose wife recently gave birth to twins, was a member of a local vigilance group.

He was said to have left his village of Ogwuaga to Okwelle to buy some items and on his way back, he was spotted by a gang of unknown gunmen passing by the road.

On sighting him, the hoodlums, who were said to have kidnapped a mother and child elsewhere and were passing through the community, identified him as a security agent, stopped, and shot him at close range and sped off.
