

Court Remands Man For Beating 'Thief' To Death In Oyo

By .

Thu, 14 Apr 2022 02:56:15 GMT

An Iyaganku magistrates' court in Ibadan, Oyo State, on Wednesday, ordered that a 29-year-old man, Aliu Oladeji, be remanded in a correctional centre for beating a suspected thief to death.

The police charged Oladeji with conspiracy and murder.

- NIGERIA DAILY: Killers On Rampage In Plateau, Taraba
- Infracorp: Can Nigeria fix its infrastructural deficit?

The magistrate, I. O. Osho, who did not take the plea of Oladeji due to lack of jurisdiction, ordered that he should be remanded in the Abolongo correctional facility in Oyo Town pending legal advice from the Director of Public Prosecution (DPP) and adjourned the case to July 4.

Earlier, the prosecutor, Insp Foluke Adedosu, told the court that Oladeji conspired with others in the area to commit the offence on March 4 at about 3am. (NAN)