

Kogi Varsity Confirms Lecturer Died In Hotel With Student

By Tijani Labaran, Lokoja

Sat, 19 Jul 2025 10:44:36 WAT

The Kogi state police command has confirmed the death of Mr Olabode Abimbola Ibikinle, a lecturer in the Department of Department of Social Science Education at the Prince Abubakar Audu University, Anyigba.

The lecturer reportedly took a lady, Miss Glory Ojochegebe Samuel (24GE1034) of the same Department to a hotel at Anyigba, but allegedly died during lovemaking.

The lady was said to have alerted the hotel’s receptionist, when she noticed the unexpected development.

SPONSOR AD

In the ensuing confusion, the lady and the receptionist was said to have rushed the embattled lecturer to a nearby hospital where he was confirmed dead.

- North after Buhari: No one is ready to lead North — Prof Ango Abdullahi
- Terrorism: Despite depleting bandits' commanders, Turji, others continue to stage attacks

However, the state police command's Police Public Relations Officer (PPRO), William Aya said the lady in the hotel sex drama with the lecturer has been detained in order to establish the real reason behind the incident .

He added that the lady reported the incident to the police station at Anyigba where she was first detained, before she was transferred to Lokoja.

“The lady, Miss Glory Ojochegbe Samuel’s case has been transferred to Lokoja police command. She is already in detention at the state police headquarters in Lokoja. The Criminal Investigation Department (CID) is already investigating the matter, before the know the next course of action to take,” said Aya.

In the same vain, the management of Prince Abubakar Audu University, Anyigba had expressed deep sorrow over the incident, stressing that it’s a tragic and disturbing occurrence that has understandably generated public concern and interest.

“The University wishes to state that the circumstances surrounding the death of Mr. Olabode Abimbola Ibikunle is currently under investigation by the appropriate authorities.

“The school management expresses deep sorrow over the unfortunate passing of Mr. Olabode Abimbola Ibikunle, a lecturer in the Department of Social Science Education.

“His sudden demise, in the company of Miss Glory Ojochegbe Samuel (24GE1034) of the same Department is a tragic and disturbing occurrence,” said Barrister Yahaya Segun Alilu, Registrar of the institution in a statement on behalf of the management.