

Gunmen kill U.S.-based pharmacist in Imo

From Charles Ogugbuaja, Owerri

A UNITED States-based pharmacist, Egesionu Ifeanyichukwu Paul from Amaopara Nkwerre Local Council of Imo State has been killed by suspected gunmen.

He was murdered while driving himself to Owerri in his Sport Utility Van (SUV) in Amaraku, Agbaja Road in Isialambano Local Council of the state.

His killers allegedly overpowered him and shot him several times until he died before they left the scene

The Guardian learnt that a priest and a woman were also abducted on the route.

The late Paul was said to have been in his country home for one week to put up a pharmaceutical outfit named and a church building

A father of four children, Paul was until his death the chief executive officer of Kornfield Drugs Company, Washington DC.