

Two feared killed in drivers' union clash in Ogun

From Charles Coffie-Gyamfi, Abeokuta

TWO people were feared killed and about 20 vehicles seriously damaged when members of the Road Transport Employers Association of Nigeria (RTEAN), Ogun State Chapter, yesterday once again engaged in violence over leadership tussle.

The battlegrounds yesterday were the Kuto and Ita-Oshin Motor Parks, two major motor parks in Abeokuta, the state capital.

The Lateef Oriola and Mugisu Akinpelu factions

have for over a decade been engaged in battle for supremacy. At the end of yesterday's brawl, 20 vehicles were seriously damaged. The police confirmed that seven people were seriously injured. However, an eyewitness told The Guardian that two people were killed.

Dangerous objects used by the combatants were said to include guns, charms, axes, cutlasses, clubs and others.

As of now, the Akinpelu faction is in control of the parks but the Oriola faction in attempt to seize the leadership position from them resulted in yesterday's violence.

During the fight, travellers, traders and passersby at both parks scampered for safety.

The fight at the Ita-Oshin Motor Park was less severe because of the police armoured tank stationed there, as the police were quick to quell the violence. The injured were rushed to the Federal Medical Centre (FMC), Idi-Aba, Abeokuta, for treatment.

Fourteen suspects were said to have been arrested by the security agencies, which included the State Security Service (SSS), Special Anti-Robbery Squad (SARS) and the Police. There was also heavy police presence in Kuto Motor Park shortly after the violent attack.

The Chairman of RTEAN, Mugisu Akinpelu, while narrating the ordeals of his members in both motor parks, said seven persons sustained injury at Kuto Motor Park but no one sustained any attack at Ita-Oshin Motor Park.

According to the chairman, six of the suspects were arrested by the officials of the SSS, three were nabbed by SARS and policemen from Ibara Station arrested five.

The State Police Command's Spokesman, Mr. Muyiwa Adejobi, confirmed that five people were injured and warned members of the union to shun hooliganism.

Adejobi in his statement said: "Ogun State Commissioner of Police, Ikemefuna Okoye, has warned the transport unions in the state to maintain law and order as the command would not condone acts of hooliganism or violence".

The police spokesman, however, said that there was no death recorded.

Two feared killed in drivers' union clash in Ogun

From Charles Coffie-Gyamfi, Abeokuta

TWO people were feared killed and about 20 vehicles seriously damaged when members of the Road Transport Employers Association of Nigeria (RTEAN), Ogun State Chapter, yesterday once again engaged in violence over leadership tussle.

The battlegrounds yesterday were the Kuto and Ita-Oshin Motor Parks, two major motor parks in Abeokuta, the state capital.

The Lateef Oriola and Mugisu Akinpelu factions

have for over a decade been engaged in battle for supremacy. At the end of yesterday's brawl, 20 vehicles were seriously damaged. The police confirmed that seven people were seriously injured. However, an eyewitness told The Guardian that two people were killed.

Dangerous objects used by the combatants were said to include guns, charms, axes, cutlasses, clubs and others.

As of now, the Akinpelu faction is in control of the parks but the Oriola faction in attempt to seize the leadership position from them resulted in yesterday's violence.

During the fight, travellers, traders and passersby, at both parks scampered for safety.

The fight at the Ita-Oshin Motor Park was less severe because of the police armoured tank stationed there, as the police were quick to quell the violence. The injured were rushed to the Federal Medical Centre (FMC), Idi-Aba, Abeokuta, for treatment.

Fourteen suspects were said to have been arrested by the security agencies, which included the State Security Service (SSS), Special Anti-Robbery Squad (SARS) and

the Police. There was also heavy police presence in Kuto Motor Park shortly after the violent attack.

The Chairman of RTEAN, Mugisu Akinpelu, while narrating the ordeals of his members in both motor parks, said seven persons sustained injury at Kuto Motor Park but no one sustained any attack at Ita-Oshin Motor Park.

According to the chairman, six of the suspects were arrested by the officials of the SSS, three were nabbed by SARS and policemen from Ibara Station arrested five.

The State Police Command's Spokesman, Mr. Muyiwa Adejobi, confirmed that five people were injured and warned members of the union to shun hooliganism.

Adejobi in his statement said: "Ogun State Commissioner of Police, Ikemefuna Okoye, has warned the transport unions in the state to maintain law and order as the command would not condone acts of hooliganism or violence".

The police spokesman, however, said that there was no death recorded.