

lization of voters across the state through its network and structure which has toric event was attended by over 90 per cent of the candidates who signed a peace him to freely endorse any aspirant or candidate for the polls.

Cult clash claims three lives in Niger Delta University

Julius Osahon, Yenagoa

THREE persons, suspected to be students, have been confirmed dead at the Niger Delta University, following a renewed cult war in the university.

They are believed to be students of the Engineering and English departments of the university, located in Amasoma, Southern Ijaw local council area.

Though the incident occurred outside the campus of the institution, but the information caused pan-demonium among students at the university, especially when the gruesome picture of one of the victims was circulated in the social media.

One of the deceased students was identified as a 400-level student of the Faculty of Engineering, while the other two could not be immediately ascertained.

The 400-level student was brutally butchered with machete, which left his arm severed. The other two were discovered in the community river, behind the school in the pool of their blood, after they had been butchered.

Though many of the students kept mum over the incident, investigations however, revealed that the victims were killed over cult-related rivalry.

Spokesman of the state police command, Asimin Butswat, who confirmed the incident, said he is yet to get signals from the Ammassoma Division of the command.

ing the 7th convocation ceremony by the Imo State University, Owerri, in which Bello was conferred with Doctor of Business Administration (Honoris Causa), at the institution's Convocation ground.

Okorocho, in his speech urged political leaders to do away with such ulcerances that tend to divide the country or promote disunity among Nigerians.

He regretted that some comments voiced by some politicians pose serious threat to the nation's unity.

The governor commended the choice of the Niger State governor by the authority of the institution in far away Niger - ring Bello ourary