

Not long ago, four-year-old Ademola , who playfully touched a transformer mounted along Aerodrome Road, Apapa was electrocuted and flung to the ground several metres away. He survived but lost an arm .

Like Ademola,, passengers in two tricycles at Oriyomo Street, Ikeja were lucky to be alive to tell their stories when an electric pole fell on their vehicles.

Recently, two workers of Ikeja Electricity Distribution Company (IEDC), identified as Aloma and Bode, were electrocuted while installing a transformer at Kogberegbe Street, Isolo, Lagos.