

money from people. They also carry out heinous

Native doctor's wife, children allegedly kill two with charms

By Gbenga Salau

WIFE of a native doctor, Mrs. Olaide Raheem and her children, Sadik and Adam, have been arrested by the police in Agbado Crossing Police Station for allegedly killing two friends with charms in Ogun State.

The incident occurred at No. 55, Owonikoko Street, Agbado Crossing, a suburb of Ogun State.

The two friends were identified as Wasiu Balogun, 38, a panel beater and native of Epe, Lagos State, and Wale Aderinto, a welder and native of Ilorin, Kwara State, who resides at No. 8, Akin Afape Street, Agbado Crossing.

According to Mutiyat, wife of Balogun, trouble started when Kabira Raheem, who was eating outside the house was challenged playfully for not greeting. She was said to have gone home to inform her mother that she was abused, while her mother, Mrs. Olaide Raheem, mobilized her children, who came out armed with charms to fight.

"My husband and his friend who went out earlier just came back to meet the fight. They were separating the fight when one of her sons used a knife laced with charm to stab my husband and instantly he fell down and died while their mother also used an object to hit his friend and he too also died instantly.

"I have five kids, which include four girls and a boy. The last child, Aisha just clocked six months on September 3. I want the government to come to my aid," lamented Mrs. Balogun.

When newsmen visited the station, a large crowd of sympathizers was seen discussing the incident. All attempts to get the reaction of the Divisional Police Office, Mr. Shittu, a Chief Superintendent of Police (CSP) proved abortive, as he was busy attending to the parties concerned in the case.

The su

20

By Odin

THE

Co rested
leged
rang other ducts

Also
othe
mur
napp

The
lice,

Hot Lines: