The atmosphere, however, became tensed when friends and colleagues of the deceased invaded the hotel premises to protest against his death.

A similar event happened in Idrinana last year, when a middle-aged man drowned in the hotel's swimming pool, leading to attack of its workers and destruction of property by irate youths.

When contacted, the General Manager of the hotel, Audu Alhassan, said he could not speak on the incident until he got clearance from the chairman, a former member of the Kogi State House of Assembly.
