

Metro

Police uncover bodies of Abia pastor, two others in cleric's house

By Gordi Udejah,
Umuahia
22 October 2018 | 3:01
am

John Bolton in Moscow for tough talks on nuclear treaty

1 hour ago

Read More

Abia State police command said it has commenced investigation into the death of the pastor of a new generation church called Winds of Glory,
Photo: venturesafrika

The Abia State police command said it has commenced investigation into the death of the pastor of a new generation church called Winds of Glory, located at Ohokobe, a village near Umuahia, the state capital.

The decomposing body of the pastor, whose name was given as Blessing Kelechi and two others whose names were given as Pastor Ambassador Kalu Ikeagwu, an assistant pastor of the church and Ruth Andrew, the church's women leader, were found in Kelechi's residence at Umuobia Housing Estate in the outskirts of Umuahia

This was confirmed by the Deputy Commissioner of Police in charge of the State CID, Patrick Edung, when he led a police team to evacuate the bodies of the trio for deposition in a mortuary.

According to him, the police became aware of the deaths when it was reported to it.

It was speculated by church members and relatives during the evacuation of the deceased to the mortuary that they were likely murdered last Sunday because the two pastors abstained from the penultimate Sunday's service.

"It was on Friday evening when we visited Pastor Kelechi's house that their dead bodies were seen," the source said.

Latest

UK Prime minister holds c mutinous party over Brexi

3 mins ago

Fayose to remain in custod
adjourns trail

7 mins ago

Japan orders Facebook to protection

19 mins ago

Macron defends Russia nu
'importance' in call with Tr

31 mins ago

Lopetegui on the brink as I morale-boosting win over

44 mins ago

Editor's Pick

1 Fayose for arraigr
over alleged N1.2

2 Nnamdi Kanu say:
life, vows to retur

3

Taiwan investigates train
crash that killed 18

1 hour ago

Read More