

Release our brother's body to us, family begs FRSC

From Oluwaseun Akingboye, Akure and Lawrence Njoku, Enugu

FAMILY of a Federal Road Safety Corps (FRSC) officer, Adebomojo Oluwaseun, who was killed by a hit-and-run driver, has appealed to the FRSC authority to release the body of their kinsman for befitting burial.

The Guardian gathered that the late Adebomojo, aged 32, was an official of the Federal Capital Territory (FCT) Command. He died on Sunday, December 16, while on official duty.

Elder sister to the deceased, Mrs. Adeola George-Ogosi, who spoke on behalf of the family, narrated the ordeals faced by relatives to journalists in Akure yesterday, saying they are suspecting foul play by the Federal Government agency.

George-Ogosi lamented that the family have been thrown into grief and trauma, especially the aged mother and wife of the deceased, who are currently hospitalized due to shock of his death.

• Police nab alleged notorious robber

"Since the news about Seun's death was broken, the family has been in sadness. His mother and wife are currently on hospital bed and doctors are still trying to revive them from the shock.

"We were told by the FRSC that it has completed his autopsy on Monday, every necessary documents have been filled and we are expecting his body to arrive today, only to be told that there is an order from above that his body should not be released.

"This has caused us another trauma. We are appealing to well-meaning Nigerians to speak to the FRSC. We were told the driver escaped but the vehicle had been impounded. However, what has happened can't be reversed but we must forestall the occurrence of another sad event in the family."

She said imminent calamity might be occasioned by the delay being experienced in the release of his body by the FRSC.

Several efforts to speak with the FRSC official who had been relating with the family proved abortive as his phone was switched off yesterday.

Meanwhile, a notorious burglar identified as Chukwuebuka Nweke from Oba Ofemili in Anambra State was on Tuesday nabbed by the police in Enugu State.

It was gathered that the operatives had carried out their raids of suspected criminal hideout at Gariki in Ugwuoba axis of Oji River local Government Area of Enugu based on intelligence information it received.

A release by the Police Public Relations Officer in Enugu, Ebere Amaraizu, disclosed that Chukwuebuka was nabbed during an operation with some suspected burgled and stolen items.

Oluwaseun

LACVIS unveils road safety

By John Adegoke

THE Lagos Computerized Vehicle Inspection System (LACVIS) yesterday unveiled eight LACVIS Safety Ambassadors (LSA), a series of measures to reduce congestion on Lagos roads, increase the awareness of computerized vehicle inspection during the festive season.

The LACVIS Safety Ambassadors are Adenusi P. CEO of Towdah Ltd; Adeyinka Aderibigbe of Transportation Development; Abowale Ganiat Yusuf, formerly known as Iya Shawarma, a broadcast journalist with Traffic Radio; and Yinka Adekunle, executive director of aReach.

Security agency denounces cultism, drug

By Adaku Onyenuchoya

WORRIED that the increasing rate of cultism and drug abuse among youths could pose a grave danger, security

Assembly laments Lagos gridlock, tasks LASTMA on intensive traffic control

By Kehinde Olatunji

Mudashiru Obasa: the traffic

LASTMA officials should free flow of traffic in the