

Gunmen kill councillor, father in Plateau

By Isa Abdulsalami Ahovi.

Okorocha, youths differ on relocation, upgrade of Imo poly

6 hours ago

CBN, others seek infrastructure for financial technology growth

6 hours ago

Tribunal quashes PDP's application to extend inspection of election materials

6 hours ago

Unknown gunmen, weekend, hacked down a lawmaker, Sinimbalia Maigida, and his 65-year-old father, Titus Maigida, in Kanam Council of Plateau State.

Locals suspected that the attackers might be on a revenge mission because two months ago, a mad man killed two Fulani there.

A witness told The Guardian: "Knowing their (Fulani) attitude, probably they felt they should take a revenge in substitution because the victim is a person who owes nobody, who begs for nothing and a retired teacher who only minded his business."

Sinimbalia was an elected lawmaker in the council before he was murdered.

At the burial, sympathisers described the sexagenarian as one of the finest gentlemen in the locality.

In this article:

Plateau State

Sinimbalia Maigida

Receive News Alerts on Whatsapp: +2348136370421

No comments yet

People In Nigeria Use New Device Tricks For Ultra Fast WiFi

WiFi Booster |
Sponsored

The government of Canada needs more workers from all over the world!

Canadian Visa Expert |
Sponsored