

Troops foil ISWAP attack, kill terrorists, recover explosives in Borno

By : NAN      Date: 27 May 2025      Share :

Troops of Operation HADIN KAI (OPHK) foiled a major attack by ISWAP terrorists on their location in New Marte, Borno State, neutralising scores of insurgents and recovering arms, vehicles, and explosives, the Nigerian Army said on Tuesday.

The foiled attack occurred in the early hours of May 27 when terrorists attempted to infiltrate the troops' position.

A gun battle ensued, with reinforcements from the 24 Task Force Brigade Garrison and 134 Special Forces Battalion swiftly mobilised to repel the assault.

Capt. Reuben Kovangiya, the acting Deputy Director of Army Public Relations, Headquarters Theatre Command of OPHK, said in a statement that the troops were supported by the Air Component of OPHK, which provided real-time intelligence, surveillance and offensive air strikes.

According to him, the air strikes destroyed several motorcycles used by the fleeing insurgents, while ground troops recovered a Vehicle-Borne Improvised Explosive Device (VBIED) SUV abandoned during the terrorists' retreat.

Kovangiya said "exploitation of the area led to the recovery of the VBIED and discovery of lifeless bodies of terrorists.

Related News

- 15-year-old IDP arrested for dumping newborn in toilet
- Zulum's claims about Boko Haram's strength: Separating emotion from facts
- 20,000 flee Marte four years after resettlement

"Blood trails were also observed along their withdrawal routes, indicating additional casualties."

He added that two soldiers died during the encounter, noting that their sacrifice would not be in vain.