Five Policemen Arrested Over Death Of Butcher

No fewer than five policemen have been arrested in connection with the shooting and killing of a butcher in Ughelli over a dispute between butchers and a veterinary doctor in Ughelli North Local Government Area of Delta State over the weekend.

The butcher in his early twenties, whose name was given as Ogboko Atefa, was allegedly shot dead by a team of five policemen said to have been invited by the doctor to enforce the payment of a N100 per cow to him.

Investigation revealed that the butchers who have their abattoir at Ekiugbo-Ughelli junction by Warri-Patani expressway, had been paying the doctor N100 per cow for over a year on daily basis.

Daily Independent gathered that trouble started when the butchers insisted that the doctor should be coming to the abattoir to do his work daily as usual for the safety of members of the public while payment would be on monthly basis.
