A young man described as a student in one of the tertiary institutions in Kwara State was Monday matcheted to death by a group of three men suspected to be cult members.

The incident took place at the Ita-Ahmadu Road in Ilorin, the state capital.

The deceased, who was said to be in his 20s, was killed in the presence of his elder brother who is a shopkeeper in the area.

An eyewitness account disclosed that the deceased was dragged out by his assailants from his brother's shop to the frontage where they attacked him with dangerous weapons.

The source said the assailants first shot the deceased before they resorted to matcheting him when they discovered that the bullets had no effect on him.

The assailants were said to have left the deceased groaning in the pool of his blood when they left.

The victim was later rushed to the University of Ilorin Teaching Hospital (UITH) where he reportedly gave up the ghost.
