A pastor of the Christian Pentecostal Mission (CPM), Emma Opara, was at the weekend shot dead in Owerri by suspected armed robbers.

The robbers reportedly carried the act while riding on a motorcycle (popularly called 'inaga') as the late Opara arrived the headquarters of his church.

The deceased was said to have boarded a commercial motorcycle when he arrived Owerri from his Nsukka base on the fateful day and headed straight to Okwu-Uratta road near the Imo State University where the headquarters of CPM for Owerri zone is located.

As he disembarked from the motorbike in front of the church, two gunmen who were apparently trailing him from the motor park on another motorbike were said to have accosted him and tried to snatch his bag which contained some documents.
