The only child of a pastor with The Redeemed Christian Church of God (RCCG), in Alakuko, area of Lagos, has been allegedly killed by persons suspected to be ritualists.

The remains of the two-year-old son of Pastor Ade James was said to have been dumped in an open soak-away.

In a chat with Daily Independent on Monday, James confirmed the incident, and added that the case had been reported to the police at Alakuko Police Station.

He stated that the incident happened last Wednesday.

"My son, Emmanuel, went to school; he is in KG One. It is either I or the mother would drop him off at the school everyday and pick him up after closing.

"However, on that Friday, my wife went to collect him but he was no where to be found," James said.

The clergyman explained further amid tears that before his wife could get to the school a female member of the ritual killer gang had already been there and took their only child away.

"A search party was immediately organised and the police were alerted but we did not know that the killers were around the area.

"After they had finished their demonic work they dumped my child's lifeless body in that soak-away (pointing at the open soak-away)."
