A MIDDLE aged man, Adesile Ogooluwa, is currently helping the Police at Ogbere Police Division in Ona-Ara Local Government area of Oyo State over the killing of a nursery two kid, a child of his girlfriend.

The mother of the deceased, Aminat Azeez, was said to have had a disagreement with the father of her only son and presumably her husband, after which she decided to start another relationship with another man, Adesile, who promised to marry her.

However, after entering into the new relationship with Adesile and unknown to members of her family, the family decided to intervene and settle the rift between her and the husband, the father of the deceased. Subsequently, Aminat decided to return to her former husband and this did not go down well with Adesile, leading to another misunderstanding and when it became glaring to the lover-boy that there was no way Aminat would be his wife again, he decided to kill her only son.

Adesile, a motor parts seller in Lagos, was said to have killed the lad, a five year old Ayo Obisesan, at Olorunsogo in Ibadan South East Local Government Area of the state last Sunday before escaping to Lagos, where he had come on the day of the election to commit the crime.

Police Public Relations Officer [PPRO], Turji Ajimuda, who confirmed the incident in Ibadan on Thursday, said the matter "is still under investigation", adding, "the police detectives have gone to Lagos where fled to bring him back to Ibadan to face the law".
