THE body of an unidentified middle-aged man suspected to be a victim of assassination was found by early risers on Tuesday morning along the Olopo Meji inter change between Iyana Oworo and Gbagada Expressway in Lagos.

Accounts from passers-by who saw the corpse of the light skinned man being taken away by policemen said the red Honda car he drove in was first noticed close to the interchange at about 7.00 a.m. without anyone showing concern.

A passer-by, who simply identified himself as Joseph, said accounts from early risers had it that the man was forcefully dragged out of his car before being shot by a gang of men who they believed were assassins.

He said the long queue of vehicles caused by the stationary car on the highway drew attention of other road users who later discovered that the lone occupant of the vehicle was completely dead.
