PANDEMONIUM broke out Tuesday at the first gate of the Benue State University, Makurdi, where suspected cult groups clashed in broad day light, leaving one person dead.

It was learnt that students who deserted the university for fear of further clashes, returned to the school on Wednesday with apprehension.

A suspected cult group had, at about 2.am on Tuesday, invaded a house on Pever Agen-ga Street, Logo 2, near Iwanger Clinic and allegedly killed one Dennis Terna Gabin, a 200 level student of Biology at the Benue State University.

Daily Independent gathered that the cultists had earlier unleashed terror on another young man at Logo 1 area of Makurdi, where he was axed and left in his pool of blood until he died.

An eyewitness said the suspected cultists that carried out the attack numbered about 10.

He revealed that the cultists shot sporadically in the air after they had macheted the student to death.

It was gathered that the development triggered a serious clash between members of the cult groups, who went on revenge mission at opposite the first gate of the Benue State University (BSU), Makurdi, and exchanged gunshots as a result of which one person was killed.
