A 200-Level student of the Ambrose Alli University (AAU), Ekpoma-Edo State, has been found dead in the university town.

Mutilated corpse of the victim identified as Daniel Akhimien, who was suspected to have been murdered at a different location, was found dumped by the side of the Benin-Okene Highway.

The deceased, a brick-layer, it was gathered, was using proceeds from the job to sponsor his university education till he met his untimely death.

Though the actual cause of his death remains a mystery, respondent were unanimous in their belief that he was brutally murdered, judging by the deep cuts on his forehead and body, suspected to have been inflicted with battle axe.

Majority of respondents ruled out the possibility of the dastardly act being by cult activities, while few suspected cultism.

A petty trader in Ujoelen, the quarters of the deceased, who does not want her name in print, said she suspected it was a case of vendetta from the deceased's colleagues.
