Tragedy struck on Wednesday in Ore- Meji area, Mokola, Ibadan, Oyo State capital where two artisans, a bricklayer and a vulcaniser died in a soak-away in an incident where the third person, another artisan escaped death by whiskers.

The deceased, identified as Wasiu and Solomon were said to have died while trying to evacuate the waste from the soak-away.

They were invited by the residents of the house for the evacuation of the soak-away, according to an eyewitness account.

Another eye-witness, Akamo Oladimeji, said that the third person whose identity was not known had gone for a pumping machine when the incident happened.

According to him, the deceased had earlier poured chemical on the soak away before stepping on it, but, the victims decided to do the job because not much was coming from their own trades.

He said men of the state Fire Service were later invited to come and remove the corpses which were taken to the morgue.

Also, some policemen from Sango Police Division were seen at the scene of the incident.
