

Motorcycle Thieves Allegedly Hack 38-Year-Old Trader To Death

men who killed him.

"I know him very well because he is popular here. He uses his bike to hustle in the evening and sells rice in bags very close here. He carried two people and on getting to Bajomo Street junction, they stopped him and struggled to take his bike but he attempted to resist them.

"So they hit him on the head with a big stick and he slumped but what I don't know is whether he died at the spot," she said.

However, INDEPENDENT gathered that Nwambam was rushed to a maternity hospital operated by the Redeem Church very close to the area where he later gave up the ghost.

When the paper visited the staple food store operated by the deceased, the whole place looked deserted with few people seen at the place wearing forlorn look.

A man, who identified his name as Chika, while talking to INDEPENDENT, said that the deceased was buried in Abakaliki on Saturday, revealing further that his remains were conveyed home on Friday for burial the following day.
