Sapele – Experience Ofara, a 14-year-old, primary six pupil of a private school died on Tuesday night in the Amukpe area of Sapele, Delta State, after an abandoned building came crashing down on him while he was playing with his friends.

Experience popularly called SP, was said to have attended a lesson class in preparation for next month Primary School Leaving Certificate and on his return went with his friends to play football at the abandoned school field.

A source, Ufuoma Ugbene said “SP came from lesson class this evening (Monday) and went out to play with his friends at the abandoned school building opposite their house and the next thing we heard was people shouting that the school building wall had collapsed on him, we took him to hospital but he died before we could get there” she said.

Daniel, another source, who claim to be neighbor to the Ofaras said “SP took a swing on one of the woods and because the building was old and already cracking, the building came crashing
