

Police In Gombe Parade Suspected Wife Killer, Robbers

By William Attah - May 15, 2018

0

GOMBE – The Gombe State Police Command has paraded some suspected criminals including a man alleged to have killed his wife, a student of Federal College of Education (Technical), Gombe.

Parading the suspects, Shina Tairu Olukolu, the state Police Commissioner, said the feat in arresting the suspects was made possible by the pro-active policing of the officers and men of the command.

He said that suspected wife killer, Zachariah Abbas of Kidda town in Yamaltu Deba Local Government Area, was arrested for allegedly killing his ex-wife who was a student of the Federal College of Education (Technical), Gombe.

Also paraded were Nature Sule, Rabi Musa and Shuaibu Lawan, members of a suspected gang of robbers that had been terrorising people along Gombe-Yola Road.

They were also alleged to have robbed one Kingsley Joseph of Yamaltu/Deba LGA of Gombe State.

Items and arms recovered from them were one AK-47 rifle, 35 rounds of live ammunition, four hand phones and N188,500 in cash.

The Police also paraded one Mohammed Bukar (33 years) alias Mamadi of Tegeri town in Borno State who specialised in using fabricated keys to steal vehicle.

He was arrested along Potiskum Damaturu Road in Yobe state and items recovered from him were a Honda Civic motor vehicle with registration number AE 434 DKU and two fabricated false keys.

Mr. Shina Tairu Olukolu said the law would take its course on the criminals, as they will soon be arraigned in Court.