ADO-EKITI – Police has commenced investigations into the circumstances that led to the death of a commercial motorcyclist simply identified as Jimoh at a popular pub in Ado-Ekiti on Sunday .

Daily Independent learnt that the deceased was hit with a substance believed to be charms by some youths at the joint after a hot argument over an unclear matter.

The incident which occurred at the popular Tayo Okada House in the state capital around noon had caused panic in the area as residents fled the scene over fear of being arrested by the Police

A witness who spoke under the condition of anonymity said fun seekers at the pub suddenly began to raise their voice against the deceased over certain matter.

It was gathered that the deceased had stepped out of the bar to escape before the youth descended on him.

“He slumped after he was hit by suspected charms and died afterwards”, the source revealed.

There were signs of bodily injuries on the deceased .The Police has however taken the corps to the morgue.

The owner of the pub and two other suspects whose identities were not known have been apprehended by the Police.

The Police Public Relation Officer (PPRO),Caleb Ikechukwu who confirmed the incident said he was yet to be properly briefed on the matter.
