The Edo State Police Command on Friday paraded eleven suspects for various crimes, including a 17-year-old Chukwuebuka Nwode for stabbing his master and employer, Onoberhie Peter with a kitchen knife to death in Benin City.

The police, while parading the suspects said, Chukwuebuka lived with his master who owns a pure water factory in Benin.

The command, who briefed newsmen about the killing through its Public Relations Officer, SP, Bello Kontong, said Chukwuebuka was employed by Peter (now deceased), the owner of a pure water factory, to help in the offloading of the packaged sachet water.

He said while the said Chukwuebuka was working as a staff, he was also staying in the same house with Peter, his master.

He said upon killing his master, he took his Lexus 330 Jeep for sale in the company of his two friends, Oginika Okafor, 19 and Celestine Ukane, 19 and were apprehended by the police in the process.

According to Kontong "They conspired among themselves to kill one of their bosses who they were working for, stole his Lexus 330 and when the police was informed, the three of them were arrested at the point of selling the valuable", Admitting to his crime, Chukwuebuka who has barely spent six months in Benin, said he did not know what came over him.

"Only what the man did to me, though I am not angry, he said I will work for him for one month before he will finally employ me as his staff."
