

her
also Ejig-
lay
ng a
vous
told
e of-
t No.
gos.
law-
Aka-
n red off
fight,
s.

en as Tijani Adeshina, Aseez Adeosun,

look elsewhere to carry out trading ac-

approaching of the video recording of the incident on the internet.

1 Killed In Traders' Generators Fracas

BY ADEBAYO WAHEED, Ibadan

An apprentice identified as Kazeem Ola Mummy was on Saturday night killed in a fracas among power generating set traders at the popular Ogunpa Market, Ibadan, Oyo State.

Officers of the Oyo State police command on Sunday averted another crisis following the death of the apprentice.

It was gathered that fight broke out between some power generating set traders following the death of one of them but for the quick intervention of the police.

According to a source, the death was as a result of an argument between Kazeem and a colleague, following disagreement over the sharing formula from one of the day's deal.

Sources within the market revealed that Kazeem and his colleague were to share a proceed of N5,000 generated from one of their customers who they had assisted to load a diesel engine and the duo were said to have exchanged heated words which eventually resulted into fisticuffs.

Kazeem was reported to have been stabbed in the neck with a sharp object during the fight and was taken to Mobolaji Hospital and later Ibadan Central Hospital, where he eventually gave up the ghost.

LEADERSHIP gathered that when the news of Kazeem's death broke, his friends who felt they must avenge the death of their colleague swooped on the suspect's boss and were allegedly accused of destroying some products in his shop, setting a bon fire and driving people away from their shops.

The remains of Kazeem were buried at Apata on Sunday.