Gwoza Women With Mystic Powers Arrest 7 Boko Haram Gunmen

BY KAREEM HARUNA, Maiduguri

It was another bad day for the Boko Haram terrorists on Sunday when seven of their gunmen were allegedly nabbed by some women in Gwoza local government area who later handed them over to angry youths that lynched them.

The women reportedly used some magical means to transfix seven of the gunmen before members of the local vigilante and angry villagers came to mob them to death.

The incident occurred some hours after a group of gunmen believed to be Boko Haram members ambushed a bread distribution van near a town called Warabe and slaughtered four persons in the vehicle.

The attacked vehicle was conveying bread from Gwoza to Polka when they were attacked. The gunmen escaped with the bread-loaded vehicle towards the direction of Sambisa forest.

An eyewitness from Gwoza said the gunmen, in their large numbers, invaded the town in their usual style - riding on motorcycles - and when they came across the women who did not run as others were doing, the gunmen decided to use the butt of their guns on the women, but surprisingly, their hands hung in the air as they stood transfixed.
