A middle-aged prophetess has been arrested by the police in Idanre, Ondo State, for allegedly, administering a substance suspected to be a concoction to a 10-year-old boy (names withheld), which resulted in his death.

It was gathered that two other persons believed to be members of the family of the deceased that also took the substance given to them by the prophetess are currently hospitalized at an undisclosed hospital in Idanre.

LEADERSHIP gathered that trouble started when the mother of the deceased took him and her two other children to the prophetess for spiritual cleansing.

Police sources disclosed that while the mother and her children were in the residence of the woman for prayers, she was said to have given the substance prepared by her to her clients, which the mother gave to her three children to drink

The prophetess also told them that having taken the spiritual holy water, they were free from any food poisoning, spritual attack and bad dreams.
