Armed bandits terrorizing Warri metropolis and its environs in Delta State ,have killed a middle aged man identified as Emmanuel Jokwo, at the weekend, leaving two others dead with stray bullets.

It was gathered that the man was killed in the presence of his wife while they were on their way home after a church programme; a situation the wife was said to have raised the alarm that attracted neighbours to the scene.

Sources said that the victim ran into troubled waters when some youths around a beer parlour close to his wife's store along the ever busy Ighogbadu street, Okumagba street after he and the wife had left the church.

However, there was a verbal cross fire among the suspected armed bandit, who unleashed their guns on each other, killing him on the spot while the stray bullets hit and killed two others.

The police public relations officer in the state, DSP Celestina Kalu, said that unknown to the victim that the boys were bandits, one of them confronted him to "sought" them; a demand he bluntly refused in the presence of his wife as they were left with no option than to pull their guns.

DSP Kalu said that two persons have been arrested in connection with the murder while the remains of the victim have been deposited in a private hospital in Warri.
