DEATH: Man Dies After A Fight

BY KOLA EKE-OGIUGO, Asaba

The serenity of Sapele, Delta State, was last Saturday shattered by tragedy when a middle-aged man, Mr Victor Ayomanor, slumped during a fight with one Mr. Johnson Edjeba and died few hours later in an undisclosed church in the ancient city.

Investigations revealed that trouble started when unidentified male and female, ostensibly in the neighbourhood, came to dump refuse at an undeveloped plot purportedly belonging to Mr. Johnson Edjeba during the period of the monthly environmental sanitation.

Mr. Edjeba whose home is close to his undeveloped land allegedly accosted the male and female who came to dump refuse in his land.

According to our correspondent, in the course of interrogating the trespassers, a neighbour of his, Victor Ayomanor, intruded and queried why he was stopping the two trespassers from dumping refuse on the land.

A heated argument reportedly ensued between Mr. Johnson Edjeba and Mr. Victor Ayomanor.

Our source further claimed that as the argument raged between the duo, Mr. Victor Ayomanor allegedly used a club to hit Mr. Johnson Edjeba, as both men engaged in a fight.

Surprisingly though, it was Mr. Ayomanor who allegedly struck first that slumped and he was immediately rushed to Central Hospital, Sapele, and was thereafter taken to a church in the neighbourhood few minutes later on suspicion that the reason he slumped may not be medically inclined.

It was in the church that Mr. Ayomanor eventually died same day.
