

70 Year-old-man Dies While Having Sex With 2 Secondary School Girls

A 70-year-old man identified as Collins Iheanacho, at the weekend, allegedly slumped and died after engaging in a marathon sex with two secondary school girls-aged 14 and 16 in a hotel room situated at Ogbaku, a community in Imo State.

Iheanacho, until his death, was a retired staff of Chevron and the village Chairman of Umueye village, a community in Owerri. The deceased, before his demise, was said to have been in the habit of sleeping with teenage girls.

It was gathered that the two teenagers were the deceased regular sex partners even after being reprimanded by their parents. According to a source, both girls who attended a junior secondary school in the area, honored the randy old man's invitation, though did not know until they both met at the hotel.

While in bed with both girls, he was said to have barely finished a sexual round with one of the girls when he started gasping for air and later passed on.

It was further learnt that both girls on noticing what had happened, fled the scene, but were later apprehended by the police at their various homes.
