

the Army should be discharged and acquitted on the grounds that the Accordingly, he called for the prosecution of the former defence chief, insisting that Badeh "should used parents of the Chibok girls when he claimed that "The good news for the parents of the girls is ceasefire was arranged by the military authorities to dupe the Federal Government".

Suspected Ritualists Dump Woman's Corpse At Refuse Dump In Ogun

BY GBENGA ADEBOYE, Abeokuta

A corpse of a 23-year-old lady was yesterday dumped at a refuse site in Abeokuta, the Ogun State capital, by suspected ritualists after they cut off some of her parts.

The lady, who was later identified as Sitira by one of her relatives who stormed the Lafenwa Divisional Police headquarters where she was initially taken to by the police rescue team, was suspected to be one of the commercial sex workers plying their trade within the city.

LEADERSHIP gathered that late Sitira, in company of another lady whose body was yet to be found, were allegedly thrown off a moving jeep at the Olomooore refuse dump along the Abeokuta-Lagos expressway which has been notorious for harbouring ritualists in the past.

By the time our correspondent visited the scene of the incident in Olomooore junction, ladies' items which included pants, brasieres, ladies' armless camisole, lip-sticks, powder kits, nail-paint as well as a pack of cotton wool littered the scene.

The fully-clothed corpse, with her armless camisole and leggings intact, was, however, lying on the ground about 500 metres away from the spot of the items.

Closer observation of her corpse revealed that Sitira had substantial flesh from her right arm cut away with body fluid oozing out.

Meanwhile, a middle-aged woman, Esther Adewuyi, who identified herself as a relative of Sitira, spoke with the journalists amidst sobbing.

She explained that the lady had been living with her mother in the Iberekodo area of Abeokuta North local government after the death of her only child almost two years ago.

Ikeja Hotels Boardroom Crisis: EFCC Files N1.3bn Fraud Charge Against Goodie Ibru